

At the Smart Start Network, we believe that early literacy is the key to a child's future success. Through our partnership with Dolly Parton's Imagination Library (DPIL) and support from state funding, we have been able to provide children from birth to age five with a free, high-quality book every month for the past seven years. These age-appropriate books are delivered directly to children's homes, setting them on a path to a lifetime of learning.

The success of our state-funded DPIL program has led us to reach funding capacity. As a result, many communities across North Carolina will no longer be able to accept new enrollments starting February 1, 2025.

In Wake County, we regret to announce that new enrollments are closed as of 5pm on Friday, January 31st. This has been a difficult decision, and we understand the impact it has on families who are hoping to sign up. If your child is already enrolled or registered by 5pm on January 31st, they will receive their monthly book until they turn five.

The Smart Start Network is working hard to secure additional public and private funding to continue providing DPIL to children in every North Carolina community. We are hopeful that with increased support, we will be able to reopen registration for DPIL in Wake County to serve more children and families across the state.

We remain committed to ensuring all children in Wake County have access to the early literacy resources they deserve. Here's how you can stay involved and help:

Continue reading with your young child. Did you know that reading aloud to your young child is one of the most important things you can do to prepare them for success in school? Reading aloud not only promotes early literacy and language development but also strengthens the parent-child bond.
